Nature highlighted at Earth Day Birthday

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Nature was in the forefront at F. G. Miller High School on Saturday, as youngsters from Elk Point and area gained a new perspective on northeast Alberta wildlife and protecting the environment, just in time for Earth Day.

The Earth Day Birthday Party was sponsored by the Bonnyville-based Lakeland Industry and Community Association (LICA), with members of the organization's Education and Information Committee keeping the rapt attention of the group as they visited four unique stations, and were involved in hands-on activities.

The tour began at Station 'L', where the children identified animals ranging from beavers and bears to ravens and Canada geese, discovering similarities and differences between the species and later matching tracks to each of the animals and birds.

The group then moved the length of the gym to Station 'I' and a fascinating display of pelts, horns and taxidermy, where they could get up close and personal with an owl, a golden eagle and a fisher, feel the texture of moose antlers and the difference between the soft, furry coats of animals as small as an ermine and as large as a black bear.

Station 'C' had another treat for the senses, as the youngsters heard the sounds of wildlife in the forest, and did their best to identify the calls of deer, wolves and other animals and birds.

Everyone also had an opportunity for a hands-on experience with the hides of various fur-bearing animals.

Budget top concern for May 5 election

JANANI WHITFIELD
Review Staff

As Premier Jim Prentice dropped the writ last Tuesday, candidates hastened to open local campaign offices, talk with constituents and gear up for the election to be held on May 5.

Darrell Younghans, the Progressive Conservative candidate, has spent years on the party's organizational side. The farmer and previous school board chair stepped down as constituency association president to win the March 14 nomination in a tight race requiring three rounds of runoff ballot ranking.

As he kicked off campaigning, he noted there was one big topic of conversation that kept on coming up.

"The budget, of course, seems to be the biggest thing on people's minds right now — and the effect that it has on them personally," he said. Alberta's latest budget introduced an increase to Alberta's 10 per cent flat tax, with those earning more than $100,000 to $250,000 facing an increasing tax rate over the next three years. The budget also brought in a new health care levy for those earning over $50,000, a fuel tax increase of four cents, a 10 per cent liquor mark-up, a hike to the tobacco tax, increased insurance premiums, increased traffic offences fines and other user fee increases.

"When it's broken down, I think people are going to see that it's one of those budgets that had to happen. Nobody ever wants to put a budget out there where you increase any kind of taxes, but in the economic times we're facing, it's something that had to be done. It takes strong leadership to go out there and do that," said Younghans.

One St. Paul resident attending Younghans' St. Paul campaign office opening on Thursday was philosophical about the proposed changes. "The budget is what the budget is," said Henry Thomson. "There's bills to be paid — the money has to come from somewhere."

However, he still had questions about the province's directions in several areas, including emergency medical services, training and recruiting doctors, and the proposed health care levy.

Younghans recalled a time when health care levies were as high as $80 to $90 a month, before they were cancelled in 2009. This new levy will be less onerous, he said; the maximum amount people pay will rise with income, starting at $200 a year for people earning below $70,000, rising to $1,000 for people earning more than $130,000. "It's pretty minimal."

Younghans was also asked about the timing of the election, which was called a year before the government's own fixed election date. He said the government had to get a mandate after introducing a difficult budget; as to the fairness, to other parties that might be struggling to organize in rapid order, he said he had seen opposition parties with more signs out there than the PCs themselves.

GETTING IN THE SWIM OF THINGS - Young performers from Elk Point and Vermilion practice their song and dance routine for "Under the Sea" at Elk Point Elementary School last Wednesday, with their April 18 performance drawing near.

'Mermaid' in the spotlight on Saturday

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

It's the final, grueling week of rehearsals for 21 local youths as they join a more experienced crew from Vermilion in the Elk Point Theatre Project's first-ever performance this Saturday evening, as they present Disney's

'The Little Mermaid.' Director Cindy Miller has spent the winter encouraging a small ocean of neophyte sea creatures from squids to seagulls to sailors to learn lines, songs and choreography for the production, which will hit the Elk Point Arts and Leisure Centre stage at 7 p.m.

Miller, who has a background in education and performing arts, has had a similar program underway in Vermilion for several years and has produced shows ranging from 'Grease' to 'Beauty and the Beast' in that community.

The theatre program is a hands-on way for young people to learn everything from stage management to choreography, and provides an atmosphere where they can create in a safe and nurturing atmosphere.

Tickets for 'The Little Mermaid' are available at Elk Point Realty, 780-724-4777 or from Sharon, 780-645-9774 or LoAnne, 780-645-8236.

More than a few laughs

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

If laughter is the best medicine, everyone who attended Saturday's comedy night, hosted by Elk Point Royal Purple, should be in the best of health for a long time.

Andrew Grose, who produces the Edmonton International Comedy Festival and has appeared on Just For Laughs eight times, is also heard daily on CHED Radio. He was introduced by another familiar figure, Graham Neil, who appears regularly on CTV Edmonton news and CFCW Radio.

Graham Neil

Andrew Grose

The two kept the audience roaring with laughter throughout the evening, Neil poking fun at small town life and newspapers such as ours, while Grose told some hilarious stories of family life and keeping up with his wife, who at the very end, we discovered, writes his jokes, clearly a lady not afraid of being laughed at or about.

And yes, Graham, we do write about visitors to our town, especially when they are as entertaining as you and Andrew are!

FGM gym to be named for Pacer pioneer

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

It's been just two decades since coach Ray Danyluk led F. G. Miller High School's Senior Crusaders girls' basketball team all the way to the consolation finals at provincials, and more than twice that long since he first hit the gym floor himself as one of the newly formed Elk Point Pacers men's basketball team.

His long history with basketball and the F. G. Miller gym led to Danyluk's goal of seeing his old stomping grounds enlarged to regulation basketball court size, a goal that he was finally able to accomplish during his final term as the MLA for St. Paul - Lac La Biche.

The achievement of that goal will be honored this month when F. G. Miller Jr./Sr. High School officially names their newly renovated gym the "Ray Danyluk Gymnasium" on Thursday, April 30 at 2 p.m.

Principal Colin Bjorkman says the school "wishes to recognize Ray's efforts and hard work in making the gym renovation project a reality. We would like to extend an invitation to community members who wish to attend."

The afternoon will include a short basketball game between some of the Pacers and the F. G. Miller senior high basketball teams, followed by the naming ceremony.

April is Oral Health Month. Good oral health begins during pregnancy. Mothers-to-be need adequate amounts of calcium and vitamin D to build strong bones and teeth. In young children, parents should brush their teeth for them until they are able to do a good job themselves...around the age of 6 or 7. Teach them how to floss as well. Good oral hygiene can translate into good general health.

December 2014 saw the 60th anniversary of the discovery of the Salk polio vaccine. Prior to that time, the approach of summer meant "polio season". Today's parents can't begin to understand the horror parents then felt about the possibility of their children being afflicted with polio because prior to the vaccine, the disease crippled 35,000 children every year.

When the elderly start showing signs of dementia (memory loss, confusion, loss of ability to do everyday tasks, apathy and withdrawal, problems with language), it's important to rule out causes that might be controllable.

The problem might be medication. As we age, our bodies handle drugs a little more slowly so simply a reduction in dose might be necessary. Anti-anxiety drugs, sedatives, narcotics, anti-seizure drugs and even some antibiotics can cause dementia. Our pharmacists would be glad to check your drug profile for you.

Our pharmacists can review your drug record for those that may cause potential dementia problems. We are never too busy to talk to you about your medications.

Keep it clean

It's provincial election time again, whether we were expecting it, or like the idea, or not. The timing of elections is not for us to decide, but whose name to check on the ballot, come May 5, is.

Many Albertans already know who they will trust to represent them in the coming term, but for those who have not yet decided, there will be forums and open houses to attend in the interim.

A word of caution to candidates: If you want to earn the voters' respect, run a clean campaign, and keep your temper. The distasteful memory of the catfights in the last campaign is still strong in many minds.

SAFETY FIRST

Tips for a safe motorcycle season

INSURANCE BUREAU OF CANADA

While it has been a long winter, spring has finally arrived and warmer temperatures are hopefully on their way. This time of year is when Canadians also begin getting their motorcycles ready for the riding season. Statistics Canada reports there are 672,000 registered motorcycles and mopeds in Canada, a third of them in Ontario. Insurance Bureau of Canada (IBC) is offering some tips for motorcyclists to help them prepare for a safe season.

If it's your first ride of the season, do a complete check of your motorcycle or take it to a dealer for a tune-up," said Steve Kee, Director, Media & Digital Communications, IBC. "At the very least, check and clean your battery terminals, and check the oil and other lubricants. Also, check the tire inflation and inspect your tires for cuts and cracks."

■ Drive what you can control. Often, people buy motorcycles that are too powerful for them to handle. Ask your dealer if you can test drive the bike before you buy it.

■ Take a safety course. Be aware of your limits on a motorcycle. What would happen if you had to quickly avoid an incident?

■ Ride according to weather and road conditions. Check the forecast and keep your eyes on the road ahead.

■ Wear a DOT (Department of Transportation) approved helmet. Choose the helmet best suited for how you ride, and replace your helmet every five years.

■ Wear clothing that will protect you in a fall. Heavy denim or leather jackets and pants aren't just stylish; they help prevent nasty cuts and burns if you fall.

■ Stay focused on the road. The cold reality is that motorcyclists are 30 times more likely to die in a collision than people in a car, according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

■ Always be seen. Assume car drivers can't see you, so leave them plenty of room. Also, wear clothing or reflective materials that allow you to be seen.

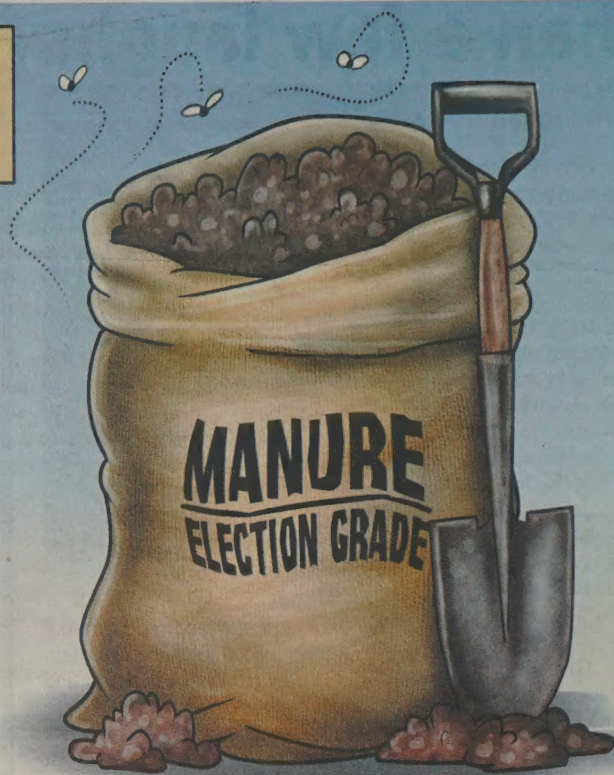

■ Ride in the proper position in the lane. Know where you should be positioned in the lane and never drive along the middle of the lane where there is oil build up from cars.

■ Practise riding with others. When riding as a group form a staggered pattern and establish hand signals that all of the riders understand.

■ Stop frequently. Being rested will help you focus on the roads.

Stay alert to all potential dangers," adds Kee. "Riding a motorcycle requires skill, control and a different level of focus than driving a car. Just remember that car drivers may not see you."

Way Back When...

Enhanced recovery, Fair Play, Service Best

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF APRIL 14 IN...

1985

Dome Petroleum Limited hosted over 125 people at an open house outlining their plans to expand operations with enhanced recovery and plans to add four 16-well directionally drilled pads per year for five years. Elk Point chamber of commerce president Clark Stuparyk urged members to "get your priorities straight" on chamber projects and to exhibit "an appearance of professionalism" by publicly backing decisions made in meetings, regardless of their personal feelings.

1990

The Elk Point Peewee hockey team, coached by Ron Dunlop, Lionel Romanchuk and Ron Piotrowski, won a prestigious honour when they were named the North East Alberta Recreation Association's Alberta Fair Play Award winners. Council and board members outnumbered ratepayers three to one as the Town of Elk Point reported on a good year at the town's annual meeting, Mayor Bruce Kleiberger remarking that "things must be going so well that no one has anything to discuss with us."

1995

Volunteers from the Fort George and Buckingham House Advisory Board and Friends of the Forts were honoured for their commitment to the historic site with an appreciation day where site manager Karen Doyle said that without their efforts, many projects and activities at the site would not be possible. Town council agreed to change from conditional to unconditional funding for FCSS, agreeing that the unconditional funding, paid quarterly, would be better for the town's cash flow than conditional, which was paid annually.

2000

Twenty-eight participants representing 17 businesses took part in the Service Best seminar hosted by the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce and received a lot of valuable information from the one-day session. Ruby Braconnier and Tara Campbell were the High Point winners when Elk Point Gymkhana Club wound up their season, with Chris Shankowski and Dana McMillan as the runners-up.

2005

If Elk Point Chamber of Commerce had been successful in efforts to bring the 1927-built Myrnam train station to Elk Point and refurbish it, the project would have been unique to Alberta, Town Coun. Thomas Kondla said, after he learned that only three of the 71 stations built across the prairies with that plan between 1919 and 1930 have been preserved, one in Manitoba and two in Saskatchewan. Reeve Robert Bouchard expressed hopes of keeping the County of St. Paul taxes down, with roads, capital replacement and potential infrastructure funding among the top considerations for the year's budget.

2010

A big dump of snow kept chamber of commerce president Sandy Smith from making her daily Greyhound Bus run to Edmonton on the Friday, but it didn't keep a large and enthusiastic crowd away from the Danny Hooper concert, fundraising auction and dinner the following night. Progress on the Visitor Information EcoCentre was slow but steady, with the FCSS offices ready for occupation but a major cleanup needed in the basement storeroom and final inspection required for the elevator.

Celebrating Canada's adult learners

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

April 11 to 19 is Adult Learners' Week in Canada, as declared by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), with this year's theme. "Celebrating Adult Learners."

UNESCO's Principles for Adult Learning include access and participation for all adult learners, stating "It is essential to encourage a culture of lifelong learning which respects differences and seeks to overcome barriers which limit the capacity of all adult learners to participate and of stakeholders to fulfill their roles." They advocate a participatory approach in policy development, spell out the necessary resources and the appropriate qualities of "A comprehensive and effective adult learning system that will offer learners appropriate methods and content supported by services adapted to their needs to facilitate acquisition of new skills and knowledge, self-confidence and empowerment."

The Elk Point and District Further Education Council, chaired by Sandra Cameron and made up of representatives from across the area, is a non-profit organization funded in part by Alberta Learning, which offers a wide variety of courses in Elk Point and Heinsburg.

Elk Point's courses in the January to June semester, coordinated by Verona Lea Flanders, are many and varied. Some teach participants how to navigate today's maze of electronics, from basic computer use and word processing to the best utilization of multi-function Ipads and iPhones. Other courses assist those who need advice on retirement planning and living in retirement, while a useful course for all ages teaches the basics of standard first aid. Fitness is addressed with aerobic dance, no-bounce fitness and stretch and tone classes, and a walking group. Other courses are totally for personal enjoyment, such as acrylic and oil painting, quilting and paper crafts.

Heinsburg's coordinator, Marie Zayac, offered courses in babysitting, basic computers and email, painting, first aid and a walking group for this semester.

In addition to the courses, our local Further Ed building is the home to the extremely prolific Daytime Quilting group, who recently passed the 2,000 mark of quilts completed and distributed to charities since the group was formed, and who already have created a sizeable stack that are awaiting the addition of backs and bindings. Volunteers from the Quilt Till You Wilt group are planning a bee for this week to complete those quilts, and the Christian Community Church is also getting in on the project with a lunch on Thursday, with the donations that are collected going to purchase batts and other needs for the daytime quilters.

FUN IS IN THE CARDS at Elk Point Further Education as instructor Judy Clerk (centre) points out the details of the next project to coordinator Verona Lea Flanders, Lynda Gillespie, Linda Green and Lynn Urquhart at last week's Stamping For Spring session.

It's officially spring - the Leafs are out!

What do you call 20 millionaires sitting around watching the Stanley Cup playoffs? The Toronto Maple Leafs! Yes, once again...spring is officially here. The Leafs are out! I know that joke is really getting old and so am I, so come on guys, how about another Stanley Cup before I die. Or at least

doug

make it into the playoffs. Oh well, as a loyal Leaf fan we can laugh it off, we are tough. There's always next year... And... the year after that and the year after that! Didn't take them long to get rid of their coach and general manager anyway, less than 24 hours, they were gone. I'm not sure about the players, sounds like some of them may be sent packing too, and it could be hard to unload them unless they bite the bullet and eat some salary. They have money to do it, so maybe they will rebuild from the bottom up with Connor Mc David! But is it the players that are the problem, or some other issues upstairs, like the Oilers. They're not quite as bad off, if they had some better goaltending and beef up the defense, then maybe they would have a competitive team.

Anyway I'm cheering for the Winnipeg Jets now. A Leaf fan could never cheer for Montreal. No way.

Oh, just so many bad memories from the Original Six days. Even though, I must say I do like their goaltender Carey Price. He won Canada an Olympic so he's OK. And a good goalie can take you right to the final game. Not cheering for Ottawa either, that is the battle of Ontario so they are out too. But Winnipeg, the wild card underdogs I really like. The last time I watched them, on a Saturday night against the Capitals, the big kid on defense, Tyler Meyers sent the Big O flying into the boards.... wow! And Buff can do damage on forward or on the D so this is my team for the playoffs.

Hey, have you noticed, the Blue Jays are looking good, but it's really too early to tell, so did the Leafs for the first couple of months. Baseball is a lot of games, day after day. In baseball you need to play well every day to stay in the hunt. The Jays batting line-up is really solid from one to nine, and from what I saw in Florida the bull pen is good too, Maybe a little iffy with their starter pitchers. Pitchers, like goalies, win you games when everyone else takes the day off. Our Bantam Sox baseball team is looking really promising too and is practicing in the gym right now for the next week or so until we can go outside, which should be soon, because...spring is here!

We have one last hockey accomplishment to report this week. Elk Point Peewee Girls Storm goalie Erin Duffee was invited to play with the Wabasca Hotshots Bantam female team in the Native Provincials held over the April long weekend. The team consisted of girls picked from all over the area, ranging from minor hockey level to triple-A bantam female level.

The tournament began on Thursday, April 2 with the girls not having played together before and losing their first two games to Tsuu Tina and Alexander.

The next day, Friday, the girls really came together as a team and Erin, playing well above her peewee level, came away with wins against Enoch 3 to 2 and Frog Lake 4 to 3, which put Wabasca in third place overall.

On Saturday morning, the girls had to face Tsuu Tina, a team which had previously beaten them but the girls had really come together as a team and with Erin battling hard, Wabasca came away with the 4 to 2 win, moving them on to the gold medal final in the afternoon.

Wabasca Hotshots win silver

Leafs are out

In the final game, the girls battled hard but could not come away with a win against a highly skilled Alexander team and had to settle for the silver medal.

During the medal ceremonies, Erin was called back up to receive the trophy for all-star goalie for the tournament and was grinning from ear to ear.

Parents Jay and Jeannie Duffee were very proud of her efforts, as she played hard against some older and very skilled players and proved she could do the job.

Now for the K.A. Campbell quote of the week.

"Failure is good. It's like fertilizer. Everything I've learned about coaching, I've learned from making mistakes." Last week's answer to: "There's nothing wrong with failing if you learn from it, and I've failed out here plenty." - Trent Dilfer.

THANK YOU BROWN

The Brown Family wishes to thank the doctors and nursing staff of the Elk Point Health Centre for the care and compassion shown to our beloved Husband, Father and Dedo, Mel Brown.

Heartfelt thanks to our family, friends & Newalta co-workers for the many acts of kindness - cards, flowers, food, phone calls, texts, visits & charitable donations. Thanks also to Grace Gardens Funeral Chapel for the care and compassion shown to us at this very difficult time in our lives.

Special thanks to those who continue to check on me and my children with positive thoughts and encouragement. We'll always remember your kindness.

Earth Day

The final stop was at Station 'A', where participants saw a model of part of a watershed that contained both rural and urban landscapes, and learned about pollutants and polluters that included everything from fertilizers and pesticides used by farmers and gardeners, to livestock eating alongside lakes and streams and construction crews moving soil. With pollutants sprinkled on the model, the children were armed with spray bottles and took turns "making it rain" to see how those materials could enter lakes and streams, and later gave their opinions on how the pollution could be prevented.

Everyone then had a chance to test their newfound knowledge as they played a game of animal sounds bingo, stamping out the pictures of each creature as its call was played, with small prizes going to all the winners before they headed off to enjoy pizza and, since every birthday party must have a cake, the perfect ending to the Earth Day Birthday: a Dirt Cake, complete with wiggly gummy worms.

He noted that as someone who has not been part of the PC caucus before, he has not been personally involved in government decision-making, and could neither take credit for the good or bad decisions of previous administrations.

"If I'm successful, I'm going back in to vote on the budget," he said, adding that will involve taking into consideration the wishes of his constituents.

Wildrose MLA Shayne Saskiw, who has represented the area for the past term after wresting the riding from long-time PC MLA Ray Danyluk, has decided to step down. St. Paul County resident David Hanson was recently tapped to replace Saskiw in this year's election.

Hanson, who has lived in the St. Paul area for the better part of 22 years, and worked in the oil and construction industries for a combined 36 years, is also making his first foray into the political arena, and said he is feeling good as the campaign gets underway.

"I'm pretty pumped and ready to go," he said, adding that he thinks the Wildrose has a good chance to bounce back from a tough session that saw 11 of 16 Wildrose MLAs cross the floor to the PCs. "The more people I talk to, the more excited everybody is that there's a chance of a real Wildrose opposition again."

Like Younghans, Hanson said the biggest issue is the budget. However, Hanson doesn't think Prentice's consumer tax increases were inevitable. According to him, the election platform for the Wildrose is rather simple.

"The Wildrose Party's platform is to repeal that tax increase that has been announced," he said. "We'll have to get elected first."

New Wildrose leader Brian Jean introduced the party's fiscal plan last week, that would involve running two deficit budgets before posting a surplus in 2017, by cutting 3,200 civil service jobs, deferring infrastructure projects and reducing spending by $2.2 billion this year.

The Alberta NDP has named Catherine Harder as their candidate for the constituency.

Harder, a university student studying music in Camrose, says it's been awhile since she's been in the area, but she wanted to provide an NDP option on the ballot.

"In the absence of a candidate from this area, I think it's really important every constituency, every riding in Alberta has the option to choose [Alberta NDP leader] Rachel Notley as their representative," Harder said.

Harder said she's been to the Lac La Biche and Lakeland Provincial Park area in past years for camping and hiking trips. She said it was "a little hard" for her to say what important local issues are, given how long it's been since she's visited the region. But she listed health care, education and seniors' care as issues that should matter to all Albertans, and top priorities for the NDP.

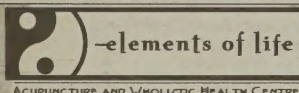

"Alberta families are paying for [the PCs'] mistakes, and that's just not right," Harder said. "We want to protect and improve our healthcare, education and seniors' care — that means not cutting it, but putting more towards it. We want to end the big corporate tax breaks and get fair tax reforms from companies, and we want to fight for fair value and more upgraded jobs from our resources."

The NDP has introduced an $89 million plan to create 27,000 jobs this year and is aiming to introduce a royalty structure that would reward companies for creating jobs in Alberta to refine and upgrade bitumen at home rather than having producers ship its raw bitumen to the U.S.

The Alberta Liberal Party, the Alberta Party and the Green Party had, as of last week, yet to announce candidates to run in the riding.
